Jed the Humanoid Font [DEMO VERSION]
Created by Quick Brown Fox Fonts / Lauren C. Brown
QuickBrownFoxFonts.com

jed the humanoid
the quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog.

Jed the Humanoid, originally released in September of 2001, was inspired by the song of the same name by the band Grandaddy. It was my first (and at the time of this writing, my only) attempt at making a futuristic font. The caps and lowercase are the same. More punctuation glyphs have been added since its original release.

This is a DEMO version of the font.
It includes only uppercase and lowercase letters.
You can use the demo version for personal use.

I highly recommend that you download the LATEST version of this font on my website, QuickBrownFoxFonts.com.

My demo fonts may be distributed through any media, as long as this PDF file is included, you are not selling the fonts, and you don't claim them as your own.

Here's how to get the full version:
The full version of the font, which can be purchased at QuickBrownFoxFonts.com, also contains numbers and some punctuation and symbols.

You can view the full character map at QuickBrownFoxFonts.com, as well as licensing options.

Whatever you use the font for, I'd love to see what you come up with! Feel free to contact me through my website and tell me about your project.

Thank you kindly!
Lauren C. Brown
QuickBrownFoxFonts.com

This document was last updated on September 10, 2016.